MATRIMONY AND ITS BEAUTIES.

Hope it will not be out of order if I for one bachelor am in favor of tying the conjugal knot; strip off my coat, clean off the dusty desk, hunt for a strip of paper, pen and ink, and prove to you that a married man is a happier one than a bachelor.

The day is at a close, the sun is sinking behind the hill of the West, then behold man and wife walking arm in arm and side by side through the forest, the dog is playfully hunting around them just as if he knew the feeling of the two beating hearts; he is forming a circle around them to tie them closer, if possible, together.—The birds greet them as they pass along with a song, the crops on the fields are bowing to them like the waves of the ocean. They sit down on a fallen pine for repose, and to greet the coming ships from distant climes with a song. Her hands will roll over the strings and soon will her voice, full of sweetness and harmony be carried by the waves to the returning wanderer. The captain is listening, the sailors will drop their work, all are enjoying the song which bids them a welcome. "How beautiful is the chorus," said the Captain, as his deep and manly voice mingles with hers. One song is followed by another; that the rays of the departing sun is bidding good-night to them from the top of the majestic tree, is not observed. A dead-like silence prevails on that proud by-passing vessel. The Captain, whose face is burned by the sun of the equator, whose hair has grown gray from the freezing winds of the North pole, or who has probably seen thousands slain on the battle field, and never shed a tear, stands now with tears in his eyes and a smile on his face and proclaims how happy they must be, and by what sunshine and happiness must they be surrounded. How sweet would it be if a wife would welcome me with a song, but O, I have never had a wife. I never had one to whom I could impart my happiness and sorrow, I stand alone in this cold world. Turning around he will tell the first one that he meets in the style of an old sea lion: "Go! and get married; take a wife!"

The happy pair which we saw before on the sea shore have returned home, have their evening meal, they do not care what it is; their love for each other forms all and everything into a paradise; he will seat himself on her footstool, his voice is heard at a distance, because he is reading one of the fire-inspiring poems of Shakspeare, Schiller or Byron. She is listening silent to every word that rolls from his lips, and playing, without her knowing it, with one of the locks of his head, even the windows are not closed; they are observed by the traveler unobserved by them; he stops; "Oh how beautiful is that piece is it not?" and a gentle tap with her finger on his cheek will be his reward. The old bachelor, who had observed them, will turn and say, "I am a fool."

The day labor is done, he is going home, the nearer he approaches home the faster he will walk, because he knows his boy is awaiting his coming at the gate; as soon as the father is in sight the child will run and grasp him by the hand, and then return home to tell mama that papa is coming. Coming home, his wife will greet him with a smile and kindly enquire if he is tired, hand him his slippers, his clothes are cleaned and dried, supper is ready, and if cold and damp a glass of punch is waiting on the table for his coming. But what kind of reception has the musty old bachelor? I will tell you; when he opens his door the cat will jump out of the bean kettle, which he forgot to put the cover on in the morning; the mice will roll out of the bread by dozens which he baked last night while reading Don Quixote, the bed is just as he left it in the morning, with the exception that the dog left it full of hair when lying in it through the day; the clock is stopped, he did not wind it up last night. He intends to go to town, but has lost the principal button of his pants, and for the want of a needle he has to go in his old pants, and a thousand other things which I cannot say for want of space in the ENQUIRER. Night is before him, dark clouds are gathering from East and West, every bright star is clothed in the cloth of mourning, see the lightning, hear the thunder roll, see the elements in contact, a flash, his beautiful and sweet home is at the mercy of the flames, and in less than no time he is a poor man. Then will his faithful wife throw her arms around his neck and imprint a kiss on those pale and trembling lips, and say, I am by you why wilt thou despair, and arm in arm they will walk through life not missing what they have lost, while a bachelor will growl about it all his lifetime.

The old family clock has proclaimed the hour of nine; the little folks gather around the table to say there evening prayer, or to sing a song, the mother has the smallest child on her knee, while the father is beating time and the oldest taking the lead, the song is ended with a kind good night and a kiss from mother they go to bed; the bachelor is thinking how he can start a fire in the morning because he burned the last part of an old boot-jack to start the fire the morning previous, and swear, in his mind like our army in Georgia, about the inconvenience of single blessedness.

Now all you bachelors, I tell you get married, if that is the only bad action in your life you do well. I for one will marry if there is a lady in God's great creation that is inclined to have me.

THE COPPERHEADS DREAM.

ED. ENQUIRER:—I will with your permission state through your paper the dream of a prominent Northern Copperhead. The dreamer was taken in a vision by a black mysterious looking guide up through space as with the rapidity of thought and in a few moments arrived at a place called Heaven. Here he knocked for admission, but was—after an examination of the Books—denied the priviledge to enter, and commanded to depart from the gates. The guide turned his course, and the copperhead as if impelled followed on the magic wings of his dark-winged companion, and was but a short time in arriving at another and different place and clime, the atmosphere of which was strongly impregnated with sulphur and filled with shadowy demons, in great contrast with the pure air and bright beings that inhabited the former place.

They knocked at the gates of the place upon which was written,—Hell—in burning brimstone. They were admitted at once—in fact seemed to be expected. His language in telling the remainder of his dream, as near as I can recollect, was as follows:—"I was taken into an apartment which at first seemed horrible, but soon became reconciled. The next hall beneath was a large cavernous looking place where upon the walls were hung many hideous sights. I now began to realize my situation, and Oh! the sights I saw in the next story, beneath—each time descending a gloomy stairway—at length arriving at a great depth and passing the dark-viesged fiends that stood guard at every corner and cauldron, from which latter, came the terrifying shrieks and awful howls of the damned; and I began to cheer myself with the idea that I was past the frightful sickening scenes of the punishment of the lost of earth—when seeing a ring in the centre stone of the floor, asked my guide what it was for? Said he, "Can you bear further and more terrible tests upon your sight and senses?" I answered, I should like to see all, whereupon he began to raise the flag-stone: and Oh! more horrible than Hell were the sights I saw there—my nerves gave way—I fell senseless to the floor. I tried again, with more resolution to gaze upon the sights beneath me; but again I fell fainting to the floor. Then summing up all my energy and courage and with his support, again looked down into this bottomless pit of horror, and exclaimed! What is this?—when the Devil—my guide, answered: "This is the bottom and most awful place kept for the use of the meanest and lowest that come here whose crimes are dark enough to make me blush, and weakens my pride of being the traitor, and the numbers of fiends you see assembled here are holding a 'Copperhead Convention,'—I awoke, henceforth to be a—Union man." The second edition of the above convention was held at Chicago a short time since.

INDIAN STRATEGY.—A very curious piece of strategy which took place the other day shows that the wonders of Cooper's Indian heroes have not ceased. One of the Fourteenth New York Artillery—a Seneca Indian, I believe, from the western part of the State—undertook, on a wager, to bring in alive, a rebel sharpshooter, who was perched in a tree in front of our line, considerably in advance of his own.—His manner of accomplishing this, was as ingenious as successful, and rivals the 'deviltry' of any of the Leather stocking red skins. Procuring a quantity of pine boughs, he enveloped himself with them from head to foot, attaching them securely to a branch which he lashed lengthwise of his body. When completed he was indistinguishable to the casual observer from the surrounding foliage, and resembled a tree as closely as it was possible for his artistic efforts to render him.

Thus prepared, and with his musket in hand, concealed likewise, he stole by almost imperceptible movements to beneath the tree where the sharpshooter was lodged. Here he patiently waited until his prey had emptied his piece at one of our men, when he suddenly brought his musket to bear upon the "reb" giving him no time to reload. The sharpshooter was taken at a disadvantage. To the command to come down, he readily assented, when the Indian triumphantly marched him a prisoner into camp and won the wager.—Petersburg Army Letter.

NEW CIRCUS.—The Yreka Journal gives the following very appropriate and sharp notice of the consolidated circus troupe which is now on the tapis for exhibition. It says: "The Great Democratic Circus Troupe, having been re-organized at Chicago, will perform every afternoon and evening, at the usual hour, until November. Vallandigham is Ringmaster, and Seymour and Wood, Clowns. McClellan will appear in his great Double Equestrian Act, of riding the two horses, Peace and War Democracy, while they go round the ring in different directions. At the crack of the Ringmaster's whip, Little Mac will turn a somersault and "change his base" from one horse to the other, with such rapidity that it will be impossible for the spectators to tell which of them he is riding. A portion of the troupe is at present in Richmond, but as the city will soon be occupied by Yankees, who can't appreciate their talents, the performers will be sent North, to add the thrilling attraction of a tight-rope performance to the bill already presented."

INALIENABLE RIGHTS.—Every woman has a right to be any age she pleases, for if she were to state her real age no one would believe.

Every one has a right to wear a moustache who can.

Every woman who makes puddings has a perfect right to believe that she can make better pudding than any other woman in the world.

Every man who carves has a decided right to think of himself by putting a few of the best bits aside.

Every young lady has a perfect right to faint when she pleases, if her lover is by her side to catch her.

THE RECOVERED BRIDE.

According to Irish legends, the fairies will steal. They will steal children, at any rate, and sometimes pretty women. Here is how a man got back his bride thus spirited away:

There was a marriage in the townland of Curragraigue. After the usual festivities, and when the guests were left to themselves, and were drinking to the prosperity of the bride and bridegroom, they were startled by the appearance of the man himself rushing into the room with anguish in his looks. "Oh!" cried he, "Margaret is carried away by the fairies, I'm sure. The girls had not left the room for half a minute when I went in, and there is no more sign of her there than if she never was born." Great consternation prevailed, great search was made, but no Margaret was to be found. After a night and day spent in misery, the poor bereft bridegroom lay down to take some rest. After a while he seemed to himself to awake from a troubled dream, and look out into the room. The moon was shining in thro' the window, and in the middle of the slanting rays stood Margaret in her white bridal clothes. He thought to speak and leap out of the bed, but his tongue was without utterance, and his limbs unable to move. "Do not be disturbed, dear husband," said the appearance. "I am now in the power of the fairies, but if you only have courage and prudence we may be soon happy with each other again. Next Friday will be May-eve, and the whole court will ride out of the old fort after midnight. I must be there with the rest. Sprinkle a circle with holy water, and have a black-hafted knife with you. If you have courage to pull me off the horse, and draw me into the ring, all they can do will be useless. You must have some food for me every night on the dresser, for if I taste one mouthful with them, I will be lost to you for ever. The fairies got power over me because I was only thinking of you, and did not prepare myself as I ought for the sacrament. I made a bad confession, and now I am suffering for it. Don't forget what I have said." "Oh, no, my darling," cried he, recovering his speech, but by the time he had slipped out of bed, there was no living soul in the room but himself.

Till Friday night the poor young husband spent a desolate time. The food was left on the dresser over night, and it rejoiced all hearts to find it vanished by morning. A little before midnight he was at the entrance of the old rath. He formed the circle, took his station within it, and kept the black-hafted knife ready for service. At times he was nervously afraid of losing his dear wife, and at others burning with impatience for the struggle. At last the old fort with its dark high bushy fences cutting against the sky, was in a moment replaced by a palace and its court. A thousand lights flashed from the windows and lofty hall entrance, numerous torches were brandished by attendants stationed round the court-yard and a numerous cavalcade of richly-attired ladies and gentlemen was moving in the direction of the gate where he found himself standing. As they rode by him laughing and jesting, he could not tell whether they were aware of his presence or not.—He looked intent at each countenance as it approached, but it was some time before he caught sight of the dear face and figure borne along on a milk-white steed. She recognized him well enough, and her features now broke into a smile—now expressed deep anxiety. She was unable for the throng to guide the animal close to the ring of power; so, he suddenly rushed out of his bounds, seized her in his arms and lifted her off. Cries of rage and fury arose on every side, they were hemmed in, and weapons directed at his head and breast to terrify him. He seemed to be inspired with superhuman courage and force, and wielding the powerful knife he soon cleared a space round him, all seeming dismayed by the sight of the weapon. He lost no time, but drew his wife within the ring, which none of the myriads round dared to enter. Shouts of derision and defiance continued to fill the air for some time, but the exhibition could not be delayed. As the end of the procession filed past the gate and the circle within which the mortal pair held each other determinedly clasped, darkness and silence fell on the old rath, and the fields round it, and the rescued bride and her lover breathed freely. We will not detain the sensitive reader on the happy walk home, on the joy that hailed their arrival, and on all the eager gossip that occupied the townland and the five that surround it for a month after the happy rescue.

MARKED ARTICLES.—Some of the marks which are fastened on the blankets, shirts, &c., sent to the Sanitary Commission for the soldiers, shows the thoughts and feelings at home. Thus, on a home-spun blanket, worn, but washed as clean as snow, was pinned a piece of paper which said: "This blanket was carried by Milly Aldrich (who is ninety-three years old) down hill and up hill, one and a half miles, to be given to some soldier."

On a bed quilt was pinned a card saying: "My son is in the army. Whoever is made warm by this quilt which I have worked on for six days and most all of six nights, let him remember his own mother's love."

On another blanket was this: "This blanket was used by a soldier in the war of 1812—may it keep some soldier warm in this war against traitors."

On a pillow was written: "This pillow belonged to my little boy, who died resting on it; it is a precious treasure to me, but I give it for the soldiers."

On a box of beautiful lint was this mark: "Made in a sick room, where the sunlight has not entered for nine years, but where God has entered, and where two sons have bid their mother good-bye, as they have gone out to the war."

On a bundle containing bandages was written: "This is a poor gift, but it is all I had; I have given my husband and my boy, and only wish I had more to give, but I haven't."

On some eye-shades were marked: "Made by one who is blind. Oh, how I long to see the dear old flag that you are all fighting under."

MORE OF THE WASHOE EXPLOSION.—The San Francisco Alta of September 27th says:

An examination of the exploded boiler of the Washoe demonstrates the fact that rotten iron was the cause of the explosion. The flues were perfect, and it was the shell or outer portion was what gave way, in a strip about seven feet wide round the entire boiler.

SENATOR CONNESS'S MINERAL LAND BILL.

The following is a copy of the bill submitted to the Senate on the 29th of June, read twice, referred to the Committee on Public Lands and ordered printed. As it may come early up for discussion in the next session of Congress, it should be studied with care by Californians:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whenever the Legislature of California, Oregon, or any of the States or Territories containing mineral lands, shall memorialize the President of the United States for the survey and sale of the public lands embracing gold, silver, cinnabar, or platinum, hitherto designated in acts of Congress as "mines" or "mineral lands," the surveyor-general of such State or Territory shall be notified thereof, and shall proceed to survey or subdivide said mineral lands into townships, sections, quarter sections, sixteenths of sections, and tracts of ten and five acres each, and such lesser fractions of a section as the Secretary of the Interior shall direct. Or whenever in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior, a departure from the rectangular mode of surveying and subdividing the public lands would promote the public interest, he may direct such change to be made in the mode of surveying and designating the said lands as he may deem proper with reference to the existence of timber, mountains, mineral deposits, and the advantages of water privileges; and after a plat of said survey and subdivision is returned to the office of the Register of the Land Office in any district where mineral lands are situated, any person or association of persons having previously occupied and improved a claim or claims, according to the local custom or rules of miners in such district, and in regard to whose possession there is or shall be no controversy or opposing claim, may enter either of said subdivisions, not exceeding——acres in any single entry, upon the payment to the receiver of the land office of——dollars per acre, and shall be entitled to receive a patent for the same, subject to the approval of the General Land Office; and thereafter mineral lands remaining unsold, and in regard to which there is no controversy or opposing claim, may be in like manner entered by individuals, or associations of individuals, who shall prove to the satisfaction of the local land office the facts as aforesaid of actual possession and improvement, according to the local custom or rules of miners: Provided, That the laws and regulations of the General Land Office, now and hereafter in force governing the disposition of public lands, shall be applicable in the disposition of mineral lands where not inconsistent with the provisions of this act: And provided, further, That the mineral lands in the public domain prior to appropriation and sale, both surveyed and unsurveyed, are hereby declared to be free are open to exploration and occupation by all citizens and those who have declared their intention to become citizens, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by law, and subject also to the local custom or rules of miners in the several mining districts, so far as the same may not be in conflict with the laws of the United States, or such executive regulations as may be made in pursuance thereof.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That wherever prior to the passage of this act, upon the lands heretofore designated as mineral lands which have been excluded from survey and sale, there have been homesteads made by citizens of the United States, or persons who have declared their intention to become citizens, which homesteads have been made, improved, and used for agricultural purposes, and upon which there have been no valuable mines of gold, silver, cinabar, or platinum discovered or which are properly agricultural lands, the said settlers or owners of such homesteads shall have a right of preemption thereto, and shall be entitled to purchase the same at the price of $1 25 per acre, and in quantity not to exceed 160 acres.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That where, by priority of possession, rights to the use of water for mining, agricultural, manufacturing or other purposes, have vested and accrued, and the same are recognized and acknowledged by the local customs, laws, and decisions of courts, the said possessors and owners of such vested rights shall be maintained and protected in the same; and the right of way for the construction of ditches and canals for the purposes aforesaid are hereby acknowledged and confirmed.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That upon the survey of the lands aforesaid, the Secretary of Interior may designate and set apart such portions of the said lands as are clearly agricultural lands, which lands shall thereafter be subject to preemption and sale as other public lands of the United States, and subject to all the laws and regulations applicable to the same.

THE conduct of some of the Copperhead editors of this State is inexplicable upon any other hypothesis than that they are determined to get into political power, if possible, at all hazards and by any means. Before the meeting of the Chicago Convention they denounced McClellan as a blood-stained minion of Abolition tyranny, and vowed they would have none of him. When they found that he had been nominated at Chicago for the Presidency, they changed their tone, and declared their willingness to accept his nomination on a peace platform as an indication that he had abandoned his blood-thirsty views, and become thoroughly imbued with Copperhead peace principles of the most abject and cowardly character. But in his letter of acceptance, McClellan breathes a war spirit of the most fiery character, and emphatically declares that there can be no peace except upon the basis of the submission of the rebels and the restoration of the Union. And these Copperhead editors continue to support McClellan and either say nothing about his principles, or misrepresent them as being of the Quaker persuasion.—Nevada Gazette.

A RAT WITH A WOODEN LEG.—The Skibbereen (Ireland) Eagle mentions the following curious incident:

"Recently a cat belonging to the Rev. Mr. O'Rourke killed a rat having a wooden leg. A vessel, we are informed by Mr. H. Tyndal, was, it appears, discharging cargo at Cape Clear, and the cat going on board caught a huge rat, which, on examination, was found to be minus a leg, which had been replaced by a wooden one, doubtless by some of the men of a former crew of the vessel. The leg was neatly attached by means of a silk cord, and lest it should wear out during the rat's life, it had on a little ferule made of tin.

GRAND RALLY OF THE DEMOCRACY.

The following has been kindly furnished us by a friend who witnessed the performance on Saturday night, during our absence:

According to announcement, the so-called democracy of Dutch Flat, met together in front of Shoemaker's Hotel on Saturday evening last, to receive instructions in the doctrine of modern democracy. The stand was gorgeously illuminated by two small lamps whose sickly gleam tended to make darkness visible. The meeting was duly called to order and Mr. Jones appointed President, who came forward and introduced to the audience, (composed of some thirty or forty of the faithful,) Mr. Hamilton, the orator of the occasion. Mr. H. commenced with his old speech of the last campaign, in which he showed forth the former glorious condition of the country, interlaying his discourse with the worn out, hackneyed expressions of fourth of July orators for the past sixty years, such as "galaxy of bright stars in our glorious banner," &c., &c., and picturing the greatness of the country under the old Democratic rule. Then he proceeded to assert that the antagonists of that party were the same old elements under a new name; that first they were "Federalists," then "Whigs," (Mr. H. was a Whig, but he forgot to mention that fact,) then "Americans," then Know Nothings," (Mr. H. forgot also to state that he was both,) then "Republicans," [here poor Jo. had to give in,) he could not go the Repubs., he was pro-slavery, and was at this point in history compelled to join the Democracy, who held this single principal in unison with his belief. "And now," said Mr. H., "they call themselves Union men."—And here Jo. spread himself (vide his last year's speech.) Denying that their opponents were Union men at all, and endeavoring to show that they (the democracy) were the only true Union party. Asserting that Democrats were the first to fly to the aid of their country, under the leadership of that great patriot and soldier Geo. B. McClellan, whom he spoke of as the great grave digger of the rebels, (forgetting he dug 20 graves for his own men for every one used for the enemy). Ranted along at the great energy with which the democratic party had been prosecuting the war, and the superior vigilence and vim with which they would prosecute it, if they only had a chance under their glorious leader. Then went back and tried to show that Abolitionists and Breckinridge Democrats had brought on the war, (forgetting that the President of the meeting and all of his hearers belonging to his party were of that stripe—and forgetting that the Douglas Democracy had long since joined the Union ranks,) and endeavoring to draw a picture of horror by talking of bloodshed and runin, graves, mangled and maimed, all brought about by Union men (Abolitionists) and Breckinridge men (Secessionists. It was here noticed that the President of the meeting seemed to imagine that there was either a pin in the seat of his chair, or in his breeches, producing on him an uncontrolable inclination to scratch. The speaker then proceeded with his last year's speech by enquiring what the Union party proposed doing with five millions of freed negroes, and drew his old picture of the terrible condition to our posterity of the inevitable results of amalgamation, &c., and, finally, wound up by asserting that the Democratic party, if elected, would at once put a stop to the war by calling a peace Congress of all the States, declaring an armistice for that purpose, and strongly insinuating, in case the confederacy would not join in and agree with their democratic brethren, then to let them (the confeds) "go in peace," (forgetting that he had started out on the war platform of George B.) and ended in a grand peroration by asking, "Whar was the man who could point with pride to a single act of the Government during the past three years." Thus ended the grand lecturer of the great war-peace Democracy, and from the tremendous effort we anxiously looked for the results. True, we listened in vain for arguments during his speech there were none. We had supposed he would show forth the principles of his party, alas, they had none. We expected to at least have our ears tickled by something funny, but alas, for Jo, this was no joking matter, and his only attempt at raising a laugh, was an endeavor to get off a silly story on the Editor of the ENQUIRER, which utterly failed to raise even a Democratic grin, but on the contrary elicited three rousing cheers for BOUST, which humiliated poor Jo. so much that he gave up all hopes of being funny. It was not until Tuesday night that the result of Joseph's mighty efforts were fully shown, then we beheld the most astonishing consequences of his eloquence. On that evening the Lincoln & Johnson club met and the large hall was crowded. After the Constitution and By-laws had been read, an invitation was given to all good Union men to come up and join the club, when about a dozen old Democrats filed up, and amidst tremendous applause and cheers signed the roll. One of whom, Judge Aubery, who has heretofore been consistent in his opposition to the Administration, if nothing else, signed amidst loud cheers and applause, and afterwards administered a scathing rebuke to Jo Hamilton in particular and his "whangdoodle Democracy" in general. Hamilton should be paid to lecture every night, as his arguments are useful in showing the fallacy of the Democracy and cause good men to come out for the Union and Liberty.

TRIP TO THE MOUNTAINS.—On last Saturday per previous arrangement, we started for Donner Lake on the new road. Having been armed and equipped according to custom by the proprietors of the Golden Eagle Hall, we left for our destination. The first house of any note on this great thoroughfare, after leaving town is Herbert's ranch, distant three miles; Mr. H. is engaged in erecting a large two-story house for the accommodation of the traveling public; his preparations will be completed as soon as the work can be done. The next house of entertainment is Cañon Creek House, kept by E. Mellows, where the traveler can be accommodated with everything desirable for his comfort, after leaving this house and riding four miles over a splendid road and through a delightful country you arrive at Zerr's ranch, the first stage station from the Flat; this is a most delightful location, and presents to the eye a grand view; this house is well kept, and any one stopping here is sure to meet true Teutonic hospitality. One mile further on we come upon the ranch of J. Gilson, who has built a commudious house and designs completing his arrangements for those who may favor him with a call. Three miles on we arrive at Wilson's ranch, one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys in the mountains. Here we stopped, smiled with our old friend Hooper,—who is doing quite a business at this place—ate an excellent dinner. Mr. W. is building an enormous barn, and contemplates making other improvements in time for the travel next season. Six miles on we arrived at Polley's Station, the second stage stand, and twenty miles from town; here, our party becoming enraptured with the beauties of the location and the prospect of sumptuous fare and downy beds, concluded to halt for the night.—The scenery about this place is grand and sublime, such in fact as our descriptive powers are wanting to properly describe. There is a beautiful lake immediately in front of the house covering, we should think, about five acres of ground. Mr. Polley has put into this lake thousands of mountain trout, which he informed us are thriving, some of them being now about fourteen inches long. He is, we think, in one of the best locations on the road, being sufficiently high up in the mountains to make his place one of resort to the people in the valleys and cities below. There is a boat upon the lake in which we had a pleasant ride, being rowed by Mr. K., who appears to be an adept in boat matters.—After passing an agreeable evening, and having enjoyed a refreshing sleep—barring the attempt of riend K. to turn himself into a high pressure steamer, which, probably, was caused by over exertion on the lake; he says, however, this is a slander, got up to defeat his election.

Leaving Polley's, we descended to the Yuba river, along the banks of which the road runs for several miles, on the line of which we noticed several houses in the course of erection of which one is being built by Mr. Colbrath, of Little York; his location is a good one, and he is one of the men who "knows how to keep tavern." After traveling six miles, we came upon the hospitable station of Mr. Woodworth, where the traveler can have all the comforts of a home. This is the most natural location for a public house west of the summit, and from the preparations going on he will be as well able to furnish "entertainment for man and beast" as any one on the route. From Woodworth's to the summit, houses of entertainment are going up at a distance about a mile apart, some we can mention: Messrs. Holt, Jones, and Webster, all of whom expect to be ready to supply the wants of the traveler the coming season.

About six miles on we came upon Summit Valley, one of the principal beauties on this route; it contains thousands of acres of rich meadow land, apparently susceptible of high cultivation, and when we saw the valley, there were hundreds of cattle grazing upon the luxuriant grass. On arriving at the summit the view presented to the beholder is sublime and gorgeous in the extreme, millions on millions of tons of rock is piled in strange, grotesque shapes to dizzy hights, in the center of which opens one of the most lovely lakes some three miles long, by a third of a mile wide. In descending you pass the ranch of Mr. Dale, who is building a house and making other improvements for the public, a mile further on you come to Pollard's station, at the head of Donner Lake. Mr. P. is also putting up a large building, a portion of which is at present occupied as a hotel, which, we are informed he does in a manner that is highly satisfactory to his many customers. Leaving Pollard's, we wended our way to the lower end of the lake, where we found quite a settlement, composed of two hotels, a store, a blacksmith-shop, an express office, and several dwellings. We were greeted by several old friends and many new ones. Halting at King & Ingraham's—the Donner House—the party was soon in comfortable quarters. After resting, we visited the spots where the Donner party wintered in 1846, and where that party suffered the privations and hunger, the story of which has made many bronzed cheeks glisten with a sympathetic tear. There is but little left of the cabins where those unfortunates perished, persons who visit the locality almost always bringing away portions of the cabins as relics.

This is, we think, the pleasantest location we found on the route, the weather during this season of the year, being mild and pleasant, and during the night sufficiently cool to require one or two blankets. There are plenty of fish in the lake, which are caught by means of spears at night. Our party essayed to practice this mode of obtaining a breakfast, but the wind being unfavorable, were unable to secure but about thirty, and with the assistance of the best fishermen. We passed two days at this place very pleasantly, and started back home much invigorated from the healthy mountain air and pure water which abounds along the route.

[COMMUNICATED.

MR. ENQUIRER;—According to announcement in your last weeks issue, Joseph Whangdoodle Hamilton, Esq., held forth here on last Saturday evening, upon the political issues of the times. Having heard that Joe had worked out an admirable sermon for the occasion, and anxious to hear what Placer's Apostle of Democracy had to say concerning the faith that was in him. I was led to present myself as a listener to his discourse. Alas, for all political expectations in every quarter. Joe's sermon or so much of it as I heard, turned out a wretched affair, a thing of threadloom shreds and patched with the usual amount of nigger's wool thrown in, and all loosely flung together by the shuttle of Joe Hamilton. You could have flung a nigger, an abolitionist or a whangdoodle democrat through it anywhere without materially injuring the web of his remarks. In short, not to put too fine a point upon it, Joe was himself upon this occasion. Joseph Whangdoodle Hamilton, Esq., yes, there he stood, the "same Old Joe," and dancing his old democratic death-dance over again, chaunting the praises of democracy, whooping imprecations upon the administration—and as of yore, rounding his every pause with an appeal to "God's conscience (!)"—a living evidence that though all things pertaining to America and Americans might change. Joseph Whangdoodle Hamilton might not change.

"Old Joe kicking up behind and before," etc.

Joe had no reason for the faith that was in him, or failed to make it appear. He was a democrat first and last, and that was the end of it, that was all the reason there was about it, that constituted whangdoodle democracy, and Joe was firm in it, and come what might, Joe would persist in being firm in it, believing that in so persisting, he was justified in all God's conscience. (!)

Joe confessed that he had at one time given his support to the war measures of the Administration, but that was a long time ago, that was in the earlier stages of the war, that was during the excitement which succeeded the first clash of civil strife, that was when he believed in all God's conscience, that the war was waged for the restoration of the Union and not for the freeing of the nigger: and it was true that he had continued to support the war measures of the administration, and to aid and assist Mr. Lincoln in putting down the rebellion, until he discovered that the war was waged for the freeing of the nigger and for nothing else under God's canopy of heaven; then he withdrew his support from the administration, withdrew his patronage from Mr. Lincoln, digged up the democratic hatchet, raised the whangdoodle war-whoop, and started upon the whangdoodle war-path. He was now on it, in all God's conscience. (!)

Joe was a type of thirty to forty whangdoodle democrats grasping imaginary whangdoodle hatchets, and clustered together upon his left, a densely packed throng of laughing faces upon his right, representing a corpse of the Dutch Flat Lincoln and Johnson Club assembled in majesty to mark the freaks of whom the gods wish to destroy. Joe whooped and danced, and the aforementioned thirty to forty whangdoodle democrats whooped and danced around him; they, evidently, were satisfied with Joe's performance, but, evidently, Joe was not satisfied with their performance; for addressing himself to the aforementioned Lincoln and Johnsonites, he whooped:

"Whar in God's name is the democratic party? Whar the democratic party that rared this government? Whar that glorious democratic party that founded these United States and always ruled and governed them until the last few years? Whar, I ask you in God's name, is that ga-lorious democratic party—whar?—Stabbed in the back by you my whig friends, stabbed in the back by you my abolition friends, stabbed in the back by you my Knownothing friends, stabbed in the back by you my American friends, stabbed in the back by you my Republican friends, stabbed in the back by you my Union *dis*union friends, stabbed in the back by all of you, etc.

Now, with the admission upon Joe's part that the shaky, degenerate monster, Democracy was so effectualy "stabbed in the back;" and taking into consideration the huge preponderance of Union sentiment massed about the speaker, it was nothing strange that his remarks about that time should have met with boisterous interruption? Indeed, Joe frequently gave signs of being a little flighty, so shooting his mouth off as to call forth cheers from Union throats when such was far from Joe's intentions.

Once, an over zealous Unionist, more remarkable for flying off the handle, generally, than for any other sparkling characteristic which I now remember, by calling for three cheers for something which Joe had said or something which he supposed Joe was about to say, (I cannot declare upon which supposition the gentleman acted—probably he himself could not tell) which being (thoughtlessly let us hope) given with a vim, disconcerted Joe perceivably. Now, such interruptions of a democratic meeting savor of whangdoodle unionism, and of nothing else. It is easy enough to mark blunderings in any democratic harrangue of the times, especially in Joe Hamilton's harrangues; but to interrupt a speaker to give tongue to the discovery marks him so doing as bird of the species "Fly-up-the-creek of politics. All the lights and benefits of a democratic meeting belong to the democracy, they are entitled to their sole use, they are theirs' in all xxx's conscience,' and let them have them, and remember that genuine Unionism never yet attempted to flop into view by democratic candle light. The gentleman of spread eagle proclivities referred to, need not take all these remarks to himself, but is hereby requested to leave a portion for Tom, Dick and Harry who upon that occasion lent him their throats to proclaim his whangdoodle propensities.

Joe was just mounting a Norwegian lion and preparing to move down upon a certain Sheepfold in the vicinity of the Enquirer' office, as I was called from the meeting. I confess that I left reluctantly, for the 'plot' was growing interesting. Hearing a succession of wild shouts, I looked back, saw Joe set forth and return as quickly, his lion, under the influence of the shouting, rearing and cavorting strangely. Joe, I am told went muttonless to bed.

In short, from what I saw, and all that I have learned, Joe did not have a Chinaman's show extended to him at Dutch Flat. He is a great sinner, it is true, and perhaps deserved his wager, but let us endeavor to be as charitable as we may, for we may yet meet him vis a vis as a co-worker in good standing, in the Dutch Flat Lincoln and Johnson Club. Strange things have happened of late. All Joe needs is a good Lincoln and Johnson Shower-bath to cleanse him of his sins. As great sinners as him have entered there, pulled the string and been cleansed. In the face of such miracles may not Joe walk in and pull the string?

THE HUUAN HAIR

HAS LONG BEEN THE STUDY OF THE most scientific men of the age, from the fact that close study generally causes the hair to fall off prematurely; and, in consequence, they have given the subject a portion of their valuable time, trying to invent some method to regain their lost locks; but all their labor was in vain, until after many years of hard study devoted to this one subject, has produced an article that

WILL MAKE THE HAIR GROW, and which, by its use as a Hair Dressing, will effectually and always prevent its loss—even to extreme old age. Happily, the while possessing these virtues, is most delightful and agreeable without regard to their virtue. The hair, when diseased, becomes dry, and commences to turn grey, which is caused by the non-secretion by the capillary glands of a peculiar oil. It has therefore been thought and believed that if the glands were stimulated into action, they would still give a sufficient supply of nourishment to the hair; but alas! they forget one very important law of nature, viz: that ALL STIMULANTS HAVE THEIR REACTION; and the more the glands were stimulated—the sooner the final loss of the much prized locks. The principle of the preparation invented by Professor Crockett is entirely the opposite—instead of stimulating the capillary glands, he feeds them with the substance they require, and, in turn, the hair is fed by them—on the same principle as giving water to a flower. All we will say to those who are timid about trying new preparations is, that we strictly guarantee the AMYGDALINE to be entirely free from all stimulants, and is as harmless as filtered water, and can be used on the smallest infant. As a

it is unequalled by any the world has yet produced. It keeps the head entirely free of dandruff, eruption, pimples—imparting to the hair a beautiful glossy softness not obtained by an known compound. It will also be found both pleasant and useful as a Cosmetique, surpassing cold cream and face lotions in its effects; for chaps, sore breast and nipples we know of no remedy that is equal to it.

THE PERFUME

used is such that the AMYGDALINE will always retain, it will not become rancid by age; in fact, it is perfect in every particular. Professor Crockett's Amygdaline can be had of all druggists and dealers everywhere. Price, 50 cents.

Ask for Crockett's Amygdaline, and take no other. se25-6m

DUTCH FLAT, September 27th, 1864.

MUSINGS.

It is a lovely Sabbath morning. All nature is vocal with praise to God, and do not we feel our own sinful hearts drawn out in prayer and adoration to Him who ordained that one day in the seven should be a day of rest for earth's wearied ones? Thank God for the Christian Sabbath! It is indeed a blessed privilege, to be permitted to lay aside worldly cares and thoughts, and rest mentally and physically one day! And does not the question arise, "how shall I, one of God's chosen people, honor Him to-day; shall I forget that His omnipresent eye is still fixed upon me, and engage in the sports of this life, or shall I seek the opportunity of speaking some word for Jesus as the spirit may dictate?" Oh! how many precious Sabbaths do we let run to waste! Do we not too often at the close of this holy day, have to exclaim, "I have lost a day?" There is a satisfaction arising from the thought that we have passed the day in trying to serve our Master, and in the strength which He has imparted done our duties in His fear.—'Tis such a blessed privilege to do one kind act, or speak one sympathetic word, actuated by love to God, that we often wonder that His children are not always engaged in his service. When his soul is filled with Jesus' love, it is a pleasure to say. "I love Jesus, He's my Saviour," and point sinners to "the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world."

How was it with you my brother in Christ, in those days when first you knew the Lord?—Could you speak too often of Him, who had done so much for you? You remember those dark days when you felt the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and believed your sins were too deeply dyed to be forgiven. And, O, what joy was yours, when Jesus revealed Himself to you! The still small voice hushed the tempest in your soul, and your heart was overflowing with love to Him who could pardon the chief of sinners. You regarded the day as the birthday of your soul, and your enquiry was, "what shall I do to glorify my Redeemer?" The past years were but a blank, you had but now begun to live.—And then you followed your Saviour in baptism, in the presence of God, men and angels, you were buried in the liquid wave and were alive only to Christ and His cause. Could you absent yourself, from the prayer meeting or the public worship of God's house? Did you not long for God's house? Did you not long for the opportunity of speaking forth the praises of Him who had taken your feet out of horrible pits and miry clay, and established your goings?—You could say with the sweet singer of Israel, "I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of God, than dwell in the tents of wickedness." Ah! how humble you were, and yet how strong in the Lord! You were not afraid then to have the world know that Jesus was all, and in all to you. You were bound to Heaven, what would you for earth's favors? There had been joy in the presence of God, when 'twas said of you, "behold he prayeth," and could you fear the sneer of poor human nature? The angels had sung their greeting over one more redeemed from sin, and could you tarry to listen to earthly songs? Ah! no,

"Jesus all the day long
Was your joy and my song," and how earnestly you sought to bring others to know the joy of sins forgiven. Long years may have passed since those happy hours, and you have wandered far away from home and loved ones, even to "the land of gold." The church where your name stands recorded nestles amid the hills of our dear New England. The beloved servant of God who welcome you to the visible church has finished his labors on earth and joined the church triumphant, and to-day his voice mingles with those who cry, holy, holy, holy, to our God. Those who were babes in Christ with you, are also changed. Some still tread the worn walks of earth, while others have grown weary with the march of life, and already with harp and crown await you on the shores of the better land, having long since laid aside life's burdens. Blinding tears will flow when you reflect upon the sad changes time has wrought, and more than all else, do you grieve that you have so far wandered from your Saviour. These early days seem like the rememberance of a sweet dream so many strange events have crowded the years between. Have you ceased to bear the cross, dear brother? That kind Father whose love knows no change still watches over you, and while your affection has grown faint and cold and almost seemed to die, this love has burned the same for you, and can never change, either in this world or the world to come. Do your not feel Him drawing you nearer Himself? Have you not a desire to be consistent as a Christian, and show to the ungodly that "religion is a reality?" Then, why not commence anew on this holy day? There is a field here for God's children to cultivate.—The Sabbath School presents an opportunity for our time and talents. Let us begin with the children, and teach them what God says, "remember the Sabbath to keep it holy." And not only by precept, but by our own example let us show them that we realize that God's day is to be kept holy. Let us pass this day as though it was to us God's day. We can use our influence to lead our friends to God's house, and as we pass along let us speak one to another of Him, whom not having seen we love. We read, anciently, that those who "loved the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard," and more than this, a book of remembrance was there, "and they shall be mine, saith the Lord, in that day when I make up my jewels." Can it be fellow Christian that you and I shall one day be among the jewels of our God? With such a hope as this to urge us on, shall we fear to obey God? While we remember that "actions speak louder than words," and try to walk before the world as the spirit shall direct, let us not forget to speak a word for Jesus, wherever and whenever the opportunity presents itself. With our hope of salvation resting wholly upon the merits of Christ, let us confess with the mouth that we "know Him, whom to know aright is life everlasting."

"A Slight Cold," Coughs.

Few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "SLIGHT COLD," in its first stage; that which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected, soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give sure and almost immediate relief. Military Officers and soldiers should have them, as they can be carried in the pocket and taken as occasion requires. We feel it to be no impropriety in recommending a trial of that new medicine, Le Doyen's Lithontryptic and Alterative. It is claimed to be the most costly in its care and preparation of any Sarsaparilla in use; and so great has been the sale of it below, that the agent has induced the proprietor to advertise largely thro' the Coast States and Territories. As a blood and constitution alterative, it has Iodine and Iron so chemically combined that it carries with the blood the essential principle of life. Try it, young and old.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN,

A LADY OF WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION.

Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsammum or World's Hair Dressing are unequalled, and so acknowledged by all who use them for restoring, invigorating, beautifying and dressing the Hair, rendering it soft, silky and glossy, and disposing it to remain in any desired position; quickly cleansing the scalp, arresting the fall and imparting a healthy and natural color to the Hair. They never fail to restore grey Hair to its original youthful color. They act directly upon the roots of the Hair, giving them the natural nourishment required. No lady's toilet is complete without the Zylobalsammum or Hair Dressing. It cleanses hair and imparts to it a most delightful fragrance, and is suited to both young and old.

The Restorer Reproduces.
The Hair Dressing Cultivates and Beautifies.

If your hair is thin, try it; if scurfy, try it; if harsh, try it; if lustreless, try it; of none of these, try it, for all who use it will preserve their hair thro' life. For sale by all Druggists. Agents for California, Hostetter, Dean & Smith, San Francisco.

A HORRIBLE DEATH.

Barney Gibbons, a private in Company A, Seventh United States Infantry, suffered the extreme penalty of military law by being "shot to death with musketry" yesterday, in this city.—In order to defeat the morbid curiosity of the crowd, Major E. D. Nash, of the Twelfth Missouri Cavalry, and Superintendent of Prisons, to whom was committed the execution, kept the place selected secret, until the culprit was taken from the Myrtle street Prison under a strong military escort. Gibbons is a native of Madison county, New York, and enlisted at Toledo, Ohio, in 1858. His regiment was sent to New Mexico in 1861, and on the march he deserted near St. Augustine Springs, and joined the rebels under Sibley. He deserted from the rebels, after serving in the battles of Valverde, Johnson's Ranche Pass and Albuquerque, and, after laboring for the Government as a teamster at New Orleans, he came to this city in April, 1864. While passing along the streets in July last, Gibbons was recognized by Sergt. Richard C. Day, of his company, who arrested him as a deserter, and his trial and conviction took place on the 18th of that month. This brief sketch is all that is known of the unfortunate man, save that he has a brother and sister living in the North whom he has not seen for ten years. He was singularly alone, a rancerous bitterness of heart, growing out of ignorance and vice precluding him from even the ordinary of his kind. He was a powerfully built man, with an iron constitution, which seemed proof against any of the usual causes of death. This will be seen in the circumstances of the execution.—The criminal was conveyed in a covered wagon from the prison to Fort No. 4, which is situated on an elevation in the south-west part of the city, and was accompanied by the Rev. Father Sautorias, a Catholic Priest, from whose hand he received baptism into the Holy Roman Catholic faith. Although there is not at the post of St. Louis an officer who ever witnessed an execution, the preliminaries were conducted in a skillful, orderly and decent manner. All the troops of the post were present on the occasion. A hollow square having been formed with one side open toward the embankment of the fort, the condemned man was placed beside a post, with a seat attached, his common pine coffin lying on the ground beside him. After making a brief statement, in which he denied having deserted, but said that he straggled and was overtaken by the rebels, he pronounced his sentence most unjust, and, in a firm, clear, strong voice, demanded to see Sergt. Richard C. Day. This could not be allowed, and the wretched man yielded to the final preparations for the execution. He was seated, and his arms tied behind the post, a white cap was drawn over his face, and six musketeers drawn up within fifteen feet of his breast. The command was given: "Make ready," "Aim," "Fire," and two bullets entered the abdomen. And now succeeded a few seconds in which transpired a scene which shook the stoutest heart, and made every human creature present shudder. From beneath the ghastly cap came a wail of agony which pierced every ear, and as the utterance "Oh! oh! too low," escaped from the lips of the quivering form writhing in the throes of horrible death, every one seemed paralyzed with horror. With a quick motion the officer of the squad waved the six musketeers aside, and four others took their place. "Make ready," "Aim"—but mercifully before the third command was given the four pieces were discharged, three leaden messengers of death entering the sternum, and a mighty convulsive shudder ended the being of the poor deserter. What an eternity of woe in those intervening few seconds! What a crowding of events from infancy, hallowed by a mother's love and prayers to the dreadful details of the present scene! Yet, all passed before the mind's eye of the dying man, and the wonderful palimpsest of his brain touched by the consciousness of instant death, gave him to see in a second all that had been for years forgotten, ere he entered upon the unknown. The error in firing arose from the fact, discovered too late for remedy, that the sights of the muskets were set for long range. Thus perished a really brave and hardy soldier, but one, alas! who, disregarding the higher attributes of the soldier, honor and patriotism, basely deserted his country's flag, and in the presence of the enemy joined the rebel standard.—St. Louis paper.

THE EYE OF THE NEEDLE.—A recent traveler to the Holy Land informs us that there is at the side of the principal gate of Jerusalem, a small one, which, upon occasions of great urgency, was opened for admission of persons after the great gates of the city were closed for the night. This gate, from its small size was called the Eye of the Needle; and to get a camel through it at all was no small task—for a loaded camel to pass was an utter impossibility. With the fact before the mind, one can see that the words of the Savior, when speaking of the "straight gate" and the "rich man," were more literal than many suppose. And we see how, as the rich man passes into the narrow way, the sides and the low top of the straight gate scrape everything from him in which he had before trusted. No one can take anything but himself through. Far easier is it to strip a camel of its burden than to divest a rich man of his trust in riches.—Christian Register.

Platform of the Union Party of California.

The following is the Platform adopted by the Union Party of California, in State Convention, August 31, 1864:

Resolved, That this Convention, representing the opinions and wishes of the Union party of California, is fully conscious of the immensity of the struggle, and of its consequences, in which this nation and the Government representing it are now engaged. We accept the contest, with its crosses and its triumphs, as the condition upon which treason has made our National existence to depend. This contest, by action now deemed humiliating, we have long avoided; but when, at last, left no choice—attacked—peace and civilization, nation and home at once assailed—we have turned upon our enemies, resolved that this land shall hereafter be true to its professions of attachment to law, to justice and freedom.

Resolved, That we firmly adhere to the platform and declarations of the National Union Convention recently held in Baltimore.

Resolved, That we heartily and unreservedly approve the nominations of Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson for President and Vice President of the United States, and we pledge to them that support which we tendered to them at our last Union State Convention.

Resolved, That in nominations of candidates for Presidential Electors, it is upon the express condition that the votes of said Electors be cast for the above named nominees of the National Convention.

Resolved, That John Conness, in the support which he has given to the present Administration as Senator from California, is heartily indorsed and approved, and the loyal people of this State will hail with lively satisfaction his further co-operation with the Administration in its efforts to restore peace to the country by the destruction of the armed power of the States now in revolt against the Government.

PUTNAM MANUFACTURING CO.,
No. 13 Platt str., New York; Cleveland, Ohio, and Birmingham, Vt.
S. C. NORTHROP, Agent.
WHAT EVERYBODY KNOWS:
That Iron well galvanized will not rust; that a simple machine is better than a complicated one; that a wringer should be self adjusting and efficient; that thumb-screws and fastenings cause delay and trouble to regulate and keep in order; that wood soaked in hot water will swell, shrink and split; that wood bearings for a shaft to run in will wear out; that the Putnam Wringer, with or without cog-wheels, will not tear the clothes; that cog-wheel regulators are not essential, that the Putnam Wringer has ALL the advantages, and not one of the disadvantages above named; that all who have tested it, pronounce it the best Wringer ever made; that it will wring a Thread or a Bed Quilt without alteration.
We might fill the paper with testimonials, but only insert a few to convince the skeptical, if such there be; and we say to all, TEST Putnam's Wringer. Test it thoroughly with ANY and ALL others, and if not entirely satisfactory, return it.
Putnam Manufacturing Co.—Gentlemen:—I know from practical experience that iron well galvanized with zinc will not oxidize or rust one particle. The Putnam Wringer is as near perfect as possible, and I can cheerfully recommend it to be the best in use.
Respectfully yours, JNO. W. WHEELER,
Cleveland, Ohio.
Many years' experience in the galvanizing business enable me to indorse the above statement in all particulars. JNO. C. LEFFERTS,
New York, Jan. 1864. No. 100 Beekman str.
We have tested Putnam's Wringer by practical working and know that it will do. It is cheap; it is simple; it requires no room, whether at work or at rest; a child can operate it; it does its duty thoroughly; it saves time and it saves wear and tear. We earnestly advise all who have much washing to do, with all intelligent persons who have any, to buy this Wringer. It will pay for itself in a year at most.

Card from the Grover & Baker S. M. Company.
The public, in their eagerness to supply themselves with Sewing Machines making the GROVER & BAKER stitch must not forget to purchase them of the parties who alone are authorized to sell them. All machines sewing from the spools and in which one needle only penetrates the cloth, and having a feed which allows the material to be turned at will are infringements
GLOVER & BAKER, S. M. CO.
A Card from Elias Howe, Jr.
All persons are cautioned not to make, deal in, or use, any Sewing Machines which sew front two spools and make the stitch known as the GROVER & BAKER stitch, unless the same are purchased from the GROVER & BAKER SEWING COMPANY, or their Agents, or Licenses, and stamped under my patent of September, 10, 14.
Said Company and their Licenses, alone, are legally authorized under their own patents, and my said patent, during the extended term thereof, to make and sell this kind of Sewing Machines, and all others are piracies upon my said patent, and will be dealt with accordingly wherever found.

AMERICAN EXCHANGE,
SANSOME STREET,
Opposite the American Theater,
San Francisco.
S. H. SEYMOUR,.....Proprietor.
THE UNDERSIGNED, LONG CONNECTED with the establishment as Book keeper, begs leave respectfully to inform the old patrons of the house, and the public generally, that he has leased from Mr. Bailey Sargent,
THIS MAGNIFICENT ESTABLISHMENT, which will in future be entirely under his management and control, and where he will be pleased to see his old friends and the travelling public. He flatters himself that his experience in the business, and his long acquaintance with the people of California, will be a guarantee that no one will leave his house dissatisfied, and he pledges himself to spare no pains or expense in providing every means for the comfort and satisfaction of his guests.
THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE is so well known to the people of California, that it seems almost unnecessary to say anything in praise, either of the building or its location. The Proprietor will only remark that it is inferior to no house in the State in all the requirements of a FIRST CLASS HOTEL, being in a central location and easy of access from all parts of the city. The ROOMS are large and WELL VENTILATED, and furnished with Spring Mattresses. Water has been introduced into all part of the house.
BATH ROOMS on the premises for the convenience of families.
Two Coaches are attached to the Hotel to convey passengers to and from the steamers.
